Selecting your elective course units - for students going into final year

Will I have to attach my mandatory/compulsory course units?

No, this will be done for you and the course units should appear in your 'Academic Year Schedule'.

I can't log in

If you have any problems logging in please contact 0161 275 5000 or email selfservice@manchester.ac.uk or complete the contact us form which can be found online at www.manchester.ac.uk/selfservice/contactus. Please note that these details are only for help with logging in.

When I search for classes nothing appears, what can I do?

We anticipate that a high volume of students will be logging on when course unit selection opens, which can cause delays searching for classes. Please keep trying, and if you are still having problems after a week or so, contact us on tso@manchester.ac.uk 0161 306 1260.

I want to do a dissertation but can't select it online, what can I do?

You can't select the dissertation option yourself. If you wish to do a dissertation you need to complete the dissertation application form. The form can be found on your Bb9 programme page under 'Options' and also at the bottom of the course unit selection page on the School of Law students intranet.

Only students who have approached an academic member of staff to be their supervisor and completed the form and handed this into the Teaching and Student Support Office can do a dissertation. If you have done this, then TSSO will enrol you for the dissertation in due course.

I want to do a free option, which course can I do?

First, check your degree structure to see if you are permitted to do a free option. If you are, you can choose a free option from within the Faculty of Humanities. You must check with the host department (their website should give you the information) if you have met the necessary pre-requisites for the course unit you are interested in taking. If you have, you can select it online with your other course units. Please note final year students are not permitted to do a level 1 unit and are only permitted to take 20 credits of level 2 options (i.e one 20 credit course unit, or two 10 credit units).
