

Sociology at Manchester

Manchester offers you:

- a high-ranking Sociology department for research;
- full-time and part-time study options on every postgraduate programme.

Sociology at Manchester is one of the UK's largest and most prestigious centres for the subject, with over 30 academic staff and 60 postgraduate students forming a diverse and rigorous academic community.

Our research and teaching includes all areas of contemporary sociology, but we have particular expertise in the fields of socio-cultural change, gender and sexuality, and consumption and sustainability.

Sociology is the perfect course to develop your analytical and investigative skills, training you in methods of social investigation in order to equip you with the ability for independent thinking, research and analysis.

We are consistently highly ranked for research, coming first in the UK for the percentage of our research outputs that are judged as 'world-leading', and second nationally based on our research power in the 2014 Research Excellence Framework (REF). Our research feeds into our undergraduate and postgraduate teaching.

Taught courses

- MA Sociology
- MSc Sociological Research

Research programmes

- PhD Sociology
- PhD Applied Social Research

Funding opportunities

Internal funding opportunities may be available towards your course. For further information and advice, please contact us.

Contact:

Victoria Barnes
Postgraduate Admissions Office
The School of Social Sciences
The University of Manchester
Manchester
M13 9PL
victoria.barnes@manchester.ac.uk
+44 (0)161 275 1296 – taught courses
+44 (0)161 275 4743 – research programmes

Apply online

www.manchester.ac.uk/study/postgraduate/how-to-apply/

Find out more...

For further details on all of our programmes, including entry requirements, topics to study and our wide range of facilities and resources, please visit our website:
www.manchester.ac.uk/sociology