

Transcript of 'Discover Music at Manchester' video.

Uplifting guitar music plays throughout entire video.

Text on screen	Image
N/A	University of Manchester logo
Our Programmes: the MusB	Whitworth Building
Our most popular programme is our prestigious single honours degree...	Purple background
...it's called the MusB...	Overlaid over a student playing a trumpet
In the first year you normally undertake: 2 x 20-credit units in musicology 2 x 10-credits in composition 1 x 20-credit units in solo performance 1 x 20-credit units in music theory 20 credits in optional units	Purple background
There are no compulsory units after year one	White stick figure playing guitar on a purple background
Choose from options in solo and ensemble performance	Photo of 3 people singing in a choir dressed in black tie and colourful dresses
Ensemble options include conducting, which feeds into our extra-curricular music making and has produced numerous successes...	Photo collage of various people conducting orchestras
Jazz ensemble	Overlaid on photo of a person in a suit playing a trumpet with another person to their left playing a saxophone
And World Music Ensemble options in Gamelan and Klezmer	Photo of two people playing a gamelan together
Choose from options in instrumental and vocal composition	Close up shot of someone writing a musical score
In composition for fixed or interactive media	Photo of a person mixing audio using audio mixing hardware
Options in musicology and ethnomusicology rotate from year to year	On the right of the text, there are vinyl records from a variety of singers
Options tend to fall within: Music, history and culture Ethnomusicology and applied musicology Music theory and analysis	On the left of the text, there are 2 people playing the recorder
Second year options have previously included: Analysis Early Opera Introduction to Participatory Music Music Cultures of the World Music Post 1900 Music, Culture & Politics in the 19 th Century Music and Consumption in the Post-Digital Age	Purple background
Some of these options can be studied in second or third year	To the right of the text, a black and white photo of a student raising their hand in a lecture

And a couple are required in second year if you want to take the third year follow-on units	To the left of the text, a student sits in front of two laptops using music software
Specialist options in third year	Purple background
Everyone takes at least one 40-credit unit in the third year, but you can take two...	A zoomed in photo of someone playing a banjo
Choose 40-credit options in: A composition pathway Dissertation project Recital on your first study	A bookshelf in a library
In recent times, our other specialist options at third year have included: Advanced Study in Musicology Aesthetics Analysis Composition for Film and Game Audio	Purple background
Advanced Study options rotate each year and are based on staff specialisms They have previously included...	People dancing in traditional garb and jewellery
Late Beethoven Bollywood Shostakovich's 4 th and 5 th Symphonies Jazz Historiography and Criticism Wagner's Ring	Photo of people playing brass instruments in a city
You can also study the MusB programme as your 'major' ...	Purple background
...alongside a 'minor' in another arts subject	Purple background
It's called 'Flexible Honours' and it's perfect if you want to...	A collage of images showing students around Manchester and the university
...pursue a language alongside music...	Metro sign in a French city
...try a new arts subject without committing for three years...	Terracotta army
...or enhance your interdisciplinary learning and experience	Purple background
This is just one of the benefits of studying music within the largest School of Arts in the UK	Aerial shot of Whitworth Building
If you're interested, check out the Flexible Honours video	Purple background
There is no need to alter your MusB application in UCAS, and no need to register your interest until July	Purple background
Beyond the arts, you can also take up options in Manchester's University College for Interdisciplinary Learning (UCiL)	Purple background
Whether you want to immerse yourself in music units or opt for breadth beyond music, Manchester has the size to help you to get the most from your MusB degree	Orchestra rehearsing
List of credits for images and icons	Purple background
www.manchester.ac.uk/music	White background with University of Manchester logo