Facilities for Music	Red tiered seats
At the heart of the Martin Harris Centre is the Cosmo Rodewald Concert Hall	A picture of the hall to the left, there is a piano and piano stool in the foreground and then behind that are the tiered red seats of the concert hall.
We use the 'Cosmo' and the other rooms in the Martin Harris Centre for all of your practical classes, one-to-one lessons, rehearsals and most concerts	To the right of the text is a zoomed in photo of a music stand
The other jewel in the crown is the NOVARS studios, just next to the Martin Harris Centre	On the left of the text is a zoomed in photo of a speaker
NOVARS is a world-leading research centre and set of studies for electroacoustic (fixed media) and interactive composition	Photo of the NOVARS studios
The ground floor studio cluster has all the latest technology for UG composition projects.	Photo of the NOVARS studios
The Martin Harris Centre also has numerous practice rooms, spread over floors	To the left of the text is a photo of a room that contains a piano including dedicated percussions rooms comprising two drum kits, a 5-octave marimba, Gamelan, and much, much more	To the right of the text is a zoomed in image of a drum set
We also have our own library in the Martin Harris Centre with a range of resources for Music, Drama and Film	Photo of a man sat reading a book in between two bookshelves in a library
Not to mention the main university library, learning commons and central support for your studies	An aerial photo of the University campus that features the Alan Gilbert Learning Commons
