Urban Story Lines and Sustainable Development

Steven Moore

Most of us accept the proposition that nature evolves, but only some of us accept the proposition that nature co-evolves with society and technology. This second proposition is demonstrated in the comparative story-lines of sustainable development that Moore has reconstructed in Austin, TX; Curitiba Brazil; and Frankfurt, Germany.

Steven Moore is the Barlett Cocke Professor of Architecture and Planning at the University of Texas at Austin where he is Director of the graduate program in Sustainable Design and Co-director of the UT Center for Sustainable Development.
